

Extend to meet your specific business and industry challenges

How to know which ERP system is right for your business?

When choosing an ERP system, it's important to consider your organization's specific needs. Here are a few steps those can help you determine which ERP system is right for your organization:

- ❖ Identify your Business needs: Understand the specific business processes those you need to manage and automate, and what features and capabilities are required to support them.
- ❖ Evaluate your Current Systems: Consider how well your current systems are working and what gaps you need to fill.
- ❖ Research of your Integration: Integrated analytics and reports should always keep informed on the health of your business. Better decisions can be made on the back of real-time data insight and integration will help you easy Access of your Data.
- ❖ Consider Scalability and Flexibility: Choose a system that can grow with your organization and can adapt to changing business needs.
- ❖ Evaluate the Vendor: Check the vendor's track record, customer support, and experience in your industry.
- ❖ Involve Stakeholders: Involve key stakeholders from different departments and teams in the evaluation process to ensure that the system will also meet their needs.
- ❖ Proof of Concept (POC): During the evaluation you can take POC (Proof of Concept) of your entire business process from the ERP provider which will give you the complete picture of ready possibilities and required customisation if any.
- ❖ Customization: If your evaluated ERP is capable of covering at least 70 % of your process needs and the rest of the requirements (if those are work-stoppers) are mapped through customisation, then you may go ahead or else below 70% is your call to proceed.
